The website uses preferences for language, intro display and consent. The application uses authentication/session and workspace preferences. These purposes must be distinguished from optional measurement. The inspected measurement module emits local events only after opt-in; no external analytics adapter is connected. Accept, reject and customize are equally accessible. Optional consent starts off, can be withdrawn, and expires after six months. Rejecting optional measurement does not prevent sign-in or core functions. Third-party maps and native device permissions are disclosed separately.
